Vettec for a Healthy Frog

In the late 1990's, Vettec introduced Equi-Pak, a fast-setting liquid polyurethane that can be poured into the bottom of a healthy foot for both protection and varying degrees of support. It allows farriers and vets to create a uniformly supportive, flexible pad made from a material that is known for distributing load and dampening concussive force.

Equi-Pak is an important development in modern materials because it also has everything a user wants; it is quick, bonds well and lasts well. It was the first product that bonded reliably to the sole and frog while keeping out debris (urine and manure) throughout the shoeing cycle. Not only does it effectively protect and support the bottom of the foot, users report it often restored concavity and increased sole thickness, as well. Today, over twenty years later, Equi-Pak is still a preferred product for use in the support of healthy frog development and function.

VETTEC EQUI-PAK FEATURES

- Auto-Mix Cartridge System
- 30 Second Set Time
- Liquid Urethane Adhesive
- Fast, easy application
- Consistent, predictable performance and set
- Flows into all areas for uniform support
- Bonds to sole and frog to keep out debris
- Eliminates the need to pick out feet
- Highly durable, protects against injury from sharp objects
- Provides cushion, dampens concussion
